Experience an S&OP process to discover how implementing buffers in a budget constrained environment, typical of the real-world, can still deliver high service level expectations while systematically reducing inventory investment AND achieving an expected Return on Investment. The experience provides a platform for organizational change management, builds confidence for your DDMRP implementation project and is relevant for leadership and/or operational staff.

Easy explanation on how to set-up buffers to have a quick impact on the company benefits...

Josselin

The best thing about the workshop : the team building and how we were working together to get the best ROI at the end

Alan

It was interesting to have people with very different backgrounds and even no experience in Supply Chain.
